

Web
Transition57.com
Twitter
@transition57
Facebook Fan
kenharvey nfl

Talk to Ken about:

- Life after the NFL
- Athletes breaking stereotypes
- How athletes can successfully transition out of sports into business
- Xavier and other projects

Media Requests

Robin M. Caldwell
robinmcalldwell@gmail.com

(646) 807-8637

Ken's Interviews/
Features

The New York Times

The Washington Post

Fox News Channel

Los Angeles Times

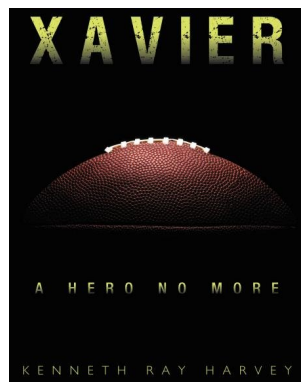

Fanhouse

Bleacher Report

Fox Sports

XAVIER: A Hero No More

ABOUT THE BOOK

Xavier Wilson is an ex-NFL football player who kills two elderly people in a horrific car accident. His life hangs in the balance as he ends up in jail, by all rights guilty of murder. There is just one problem: Xavier does not remember anything about the crash, rendering him with an inability to help in his own defense.

Charles Brown's life hangs in the balance for different reasons. The newly-divorced police detective struggles to make sense of his circumstances: suspended from his job and unable to see his child. Still, he feels this unexplainable compulsion to prove the innocence of Xavier Wilson, his childhood hero. Will his faith and life be restored as he seeks to restore Xavier's reputation?

XAVIER: A HERO NO MORE is a story that can easily be front page news. Set in Washington, D.C., Xavier: A Hero No More is a thriller that combines the intrigue of a murder mystery with the drama of reality TV. Above all that it is Xavier: A Hero No More humanizes what we idolize.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

KENNETH RAY HARVEY is best known as Number 57, a former NFL linebacker who is also a four-time Pro Bowl selection, and one of the Washington Redskins' 70 Greatest Players. Currently, Kenneth is the president of The Ken Harvey Companies, a conglomerate of his varied business interests. He resides in the greater Washington, D.C. area with his wife Janice and two sons. Writing is but one of his interests, which include entrepreneurship, physical fitness and civic service.

